1	PROCEEDINGS
2	(9:33 a.m.)
3	THE COURT: Good morning. Please be seated.
4	Okay, this is In Re: Bair Hugger Forced Air Warming Devices
5	Products Liability Litigation. And we're here for a hearing
6	on the Defendant's motion to compel Miami VA Medical Center,
7	and the government's motion to quash that subpoena. So
8	let's first get everybody's appearance on the record. For
9	the defendants?
10	MS. LEWIS: Good morning, Your Honor. Deborah
11	Lewis on behalf of defendants 3M Company and Arizant
12	Healthcare.
13	MS. AHMANN: Bridget Ahmann on behalf of the
14	defendants.
15	MR. FULLER: Good morning, Your Honor. David
16	Fuller on behalf of the United States and Department of
17	Veterans Affairs.
18	THE COURT: Okay. Let's start with well, have
19	you folks talked among yourselves about who wants to go
20	first? These motions are the flip sides of one another,
21	correct?
22	MS. LEWIS: It is.
23	MR. FULLER: Correct. I would assume that the
24	defendants would go first.
25	MS. LEWIS: Yes, Your Honor.

1	THE COURT: You assume the same?
2	MS. LEWIS: Yes.
3	THE COURT: All right. Ms. Lewis?
4	MS. LEWIS: Thank you, Your Honor. Good morning.
5	THE COURT: Good morning.
6	MS. LEWIS: This is defendant's motion to compel
7	asking the Court for an order for the
8	THE COURT: Time out one second, we didn't get you
9	on the record, did we, Ms. Zimmerman?
10	MS. ZIMMERMAN: No, officially you did not, Your
11	Honor. Genevieve Zimmerman for the MDL plaintiffs. We have
12	not filed position papers here
13	THE COURT: You're just here to observe, and you
14	represent the plaintiffs.
15	MS. ZIMMERMAN: That's correct, Your Honor.
16	THE COURT: I'm sorry to interrupt. Go ahead,
17	Ms. Lewis.
18	MS. LEWIS: Thank you, Your Honor. Again, on
19	behalf of defendants 3M Company and Arizant Healthcare,
20	defendants are asking for an Order for the Miami Veterans
21	Administration Medical Center for an Order for three things,
22	as we have in our papers:
23	One, we want, in response to our subpoena,
24	relevant documents produced that are germane to the Veterans
25	Administration's Medical Center's procedures.

2.2

Two, we are asking for the depositions of two key witnesses, two treating physicians. One is the surgeon who actually performed all three surgeries on Mr. Nugier. The other treating physician is the infectious disease physician.

The third thing we are asking for is a deposition of a hospital representative who can answer questions that are central to the case. For example, information about Bair Hugger use at the hospital, information about service and maintenance on the Bair Hugger warming system, information about infection control since infection and surgical site infections are a key issue in this case.

We also want information about the ventilation system in the operating room, again, because one of plaintiff's central themes is air flow and disruption of air flow. So those are some of the key issues that are central to the case in which we want information from the hospital.

This particular case involves Mr. Nugier, who is one of the two bellwether cases that have been selected for trial. Mr. Nugier had his surgeries, all three surgeries at the actual VA Medical Center. His surgery was performed in 2012. I know that is some time ago, but that's what we have before us.

As Your Honor is well aware, our discovery cut-off is middle of October, October 16th, and so time is of the essence, and we have been working on this since early

August, since August 4th trying to get started getting some documents and getting depositions scheduled for the treating physicians.

But because this is a bellwether case and bellwether trial, discovery must be thorough and fair because, as we know, the trial outcome will have a substantial impact on future cases. And so if this discovery is not accurate, complete, and fair, at least to defendants, and probably to both parties, it will have a significant impact on the future. And so that's why this is extremely important for this discovery to go forward.

We don't believe there's any other means to obtain the relevant data, for example, for the surgeon. He was the only surgeon who performed all three surgeries.

Unfortunately, based on my years of experience, medical records don't provide sufficient information in detail that's needed in order to prepare for a trial on the actual surgery and circumstances surrounding the surgery.

So we believe that a deposition of the treating physician is necessary because there is no other means in order to obtain data about the surgery and the details of the surgery.

THE COURT: Do you think this guy is going to remember something that happened five years ago?

1 MS. LEWIS: He may not, but at least we asked. THE COURT: It's the VA. It's not like he doesn't 2 3 have a volume of cases presumably. 4 MS. LEWIS: Completely understandable, but all we 5 can do is ask. It's better to ask and have him say no then 6 to question whether he may have remembered, and we didn't 7 get the opportunity to ask him. The same is true for the infectious disease 8 9 Again, Lichtenberger is the infectious disease physician. 10 physician. It's the physician who was the attending 11 physician and also made the diagnosis of the joint 12 infection. So, again, we don't believe there is another means to obtain that relevant data other than to ask that 13 14 particular physician questions. Again, we hope that the 15 medical records may prompt something that they may remember 16 even though it may be five years ago. We have been in communications with Mr. Fuller. 17 18 We had a conversation just this morning. We also spoke this 19 last Friday, and there was some discussion on what could be 20 done as some sort of compromise. The discussion heretofore 21 was whether a FOIA request was appropriate. We don't 2.2 believe so for several reasons: 23 Number one, we believe it would take too much time 24 to get a response to a FOIA request. And we believe if 25 you're going to ask for a FOIA request, why couldn't you do least with respect to the documents.

the same document production in response to a subpoena?

So timing, again, is super critical. We just believe it would take way too much time to get a FOIA, at I'll inform the Court, and Mr. Fuller will probably talk about it more fully, but this past Friday we learned for the first time, we had a conversation with Mr. Fuller, as well as Ms. Barbara Kehoe, who is in Florida who informed us that, number one, she is looking for documents but at this point has not found any. And, of course, we know Hurricane Irma has occurred since we filed this. She said that the hospital is sort of in clean-up mode, but at this point we still don't have any documents, and she hasn't given a definitive answer on if there in fact documents. She is checking.

We had discussions on whether it would be appropriate for deposition or written questions to the treating physicians and to the hospital representative, and we were discussing that this morning. Mr. Fuller mentioned that Ms. Kehoe may be willing to allow a deposition of written questions, followed up with a one hour maybe deposition by phone. Again, based on my years of experience, and the experience in this particular MDL, we don't believe one hour would be sufficient because both parties would be entitled to ask questions of the treating physician. So although we're trying to work some things out, at this point, we haven't worked it out where it's satisfactory, at least to defendants.

The other thing that's important to bring to the Court's attention is that on Friday, Mr. Fuller and Ms. Kehoe informed us that Mr. Nugier's surgery was not actually performed in the medical center's regular operating room. Instead his surgery was performed in a temporary trailer that was brought on to the facility at the hospital because the operating room is under construction or renovation.

So that raises even more questions for us since the theories, several theories of plaintiff has to do with the environment within the OR. So now that we know there's this temporary trailer, we know nothing about it, and there's so many questions that we need answered. How large is it? What's the operating room look like? How long has it been there? Was anything differently done with respect to this particular surgery that would not have been done in the regular OR? So this new revelation is all the more reason that we really need to ask questions.

Ms. Kehoe also mentioned with respect to these trailers that she does not believe they still have documents with respect to who are the vendors for these trailers, and so we don't even know that there are documents about it. So

1 again --2 THE COURT: When you say that Ms. Kehoe is looking 3 for documents, is she looking for paper documents or is she 4 searching electronic records somehow? Or don't we know the 5 answer to that? MS. LEWIS: I'm not sure which. According to Mr. 6 7 Fuller, and he can explain more fully, at least -- I don't 8 know, again, if they're electronic or not. My guess is they 9 may be paper. Some may be paper documents. 10 THE COURT: And this trailer business, was that 11 for all three surgeries? Or was that just for the first 12 surgery, the last surgery, the middle surgery or? MS. LEWIS: That's what we need to find out. I 13 14 believe Ms. Kehoe mentioned the first surgery, and, again, 15 Mr. Fuller may have a better recollection of whether it was 16 all three or not. But the first surgery, of course, was the 17 surgery on his knee. THE COURT: The one that resulted in the 18 19 infection. 20 MS. LEWIS: Correct. The other two surgeries were 21 treatment for the infection, so sort of revision surgeries. 2.2 So, again, although we have been in discussions 23 trying to work things out, at this point, we still aren't at 24 a point where we believe there would be sufficient discovery 25 on behalf of defendants to find out as much information as we really need in order to have a fair trial. And so as our papers mentioned, we believe, you know, outright denial is sort of arbitrary and capricious based on several cases that we've cited.

Me've cited the Ohio Health v. The Veterans Administration, as well as the Rhoads case, which we believe both talk about the fact that in cases similar to ours where it involved physicians, and the work, whether it was surgery or otherwise, but treatment provided by our physician. It was determined in those two cases that it was arbitrary and capricious to outright deny access to the documents and the data and to talk to the physicians.

THE COURT: But you do concede, do you not, that the VA and the government agency is different than a private entity that you might be seeking documents from?

MS. LEWIS: We understand, and we did put in our papers. We know about the Touhy regulations, and we believe that we complied with them and comported to what they required and the various factors that need to be considered. But because this is a bellwether case that will significantly impact all future cases, because we don't have any other means to gather that data, and that was one of the things that was mentioned in the Rhoads case, the treating physicians had personal knowledge of what happened during the treatment of the patient, and there was no other place

1 to get that data. In other words, to obtain that relevant 2 data. 3 So even though, yes, the Veterans Administration does have some protections, the courts have not said 4 5 outright that they are not required to do anything, that they can totally deny and refuse any discovery whatsoever. 6 7 Okay. Thank you. Mr. Fuller? THE COURT: 8 Thank you, Your Honor. Good morning. MR. FULLER: 9 I probably have a somewhat different perspective of the 10 paradigm here. I think that we're in a little bit of a 11 different world when we're talking about discovery against 12 the federal government or federal agency. Certainly, 13 understandably, counsel focuses on relevance and importance 14 to the case that is an ongoing private litigation here, but 15 this is not a typical discovery request where you have a 16 sovereign immunity backdrop and the government has not 17 waived its immunity where it's not a party in a situation 18 like this. You have to look to the regulatory context. 19 it's not simply that these regulations happen to be out 20 there and provide some additional protections, but that

What's controlling is counsel's letters to the deciding official at the agency explaining how the becomes the framework through which to view the request, and so the subpoenas don't directly apply and that's why we move regulatory factors are met here, and those letters hardly addressed the Touhy factors, the VA's regulatory factors. By contrast, the response was based on the applicable factors, and looking at the particular regulations that apply here under the VA, the main duty of the deciding official, I would submit, is to advance the mission of the agency in particular by preserving the time of the busy doctors here and to ensure that the vets get served. Now, there are also special protections in place such as a prohibition, unless there's extraordinary circumstances against expert testimony, and the so-called quality assurance privilege. All those things are thrown into the mix, and we're sort of bumping up against these sort of problematic issues as --THE COURT: Do you agree or disagree with Ms. Lewis that these cases that she cites stand for the proposition that the outright denial of any discovery at all would be arbitrary and capricious?

MR. FULLER: Well, I apologize if there's something that I missed, but I don't recall that there was a Touhy decision cited that was on point in that sense, so I'm actually unfamiliar with the details of those particular cases.

THE COURT: Okay. And it's your contention that quashing the subpoena outright in saying they get nothing would be an appropriate outcome and that's the relief you're seeking?

MR. FULLER: That is correct. And on the other hand, I don't disagree with the factual information that was provided here at the end of the discussion by Ms. Lewis.

And I would also submit that, or I just wanted to remind the Court and all of us that Ms. Kehoe at the very outset, you know, the circumstances are set forth in our brief, but she offered an alternative from the start, which was entertaining written questions. And from my perspective, it would be wise of the defendants to get moving and get those questions submitted. The denial decision was not arbitrary and capricious, and our position is that the motion to compel should be denied and that the subpoenas should be quashed.

THE COURT: Does the offer of written questions factor into the analysis of whether the denial is arbitrary and capricious? In other words, is it a different question if the facts were subpoena served, Kehoe says, no, screw off, leave us alone, we're too busy. Or -- that's one scenario.

Or, second, is it a different question or the same question if the response to the subpoena is, oh, gee, we don't really have to do this, recognize you've got some

1 Hey, how about the written question thing? We'd be 2 willing to do that. And then no agreement is reached, so 3 it's denied. 4 Are those two different questions or is the legal 5 analysis the same, they're just denials of requests for 6 discovery? 7 In my view, the fact of the deciding MR. FULLER: 8 official having offered the written question option is a 9 factor that the Court should consider, and so I think it's a 10 different question in light of the full circumstances here. 11 THE COURT: Okay. 12 MR. FULLER: And I'm happy to speak to any of the 13 back and forth that we've had or any of the information that 14 might be helpful again to the Court. 15 THE COURT: What is the last offer that the 16 government has made? Is it the written questions plus the 17 one hour telephonic deposition? MR. FULLER: Yes. And the way I would 18 19 characterize that is that that would be the offer. Well, 20 let me back up to clarify. 21 The deciding official at the agency has not yet 2.2 agreed that the one-hour followup could be in the form of a 23 deposition testimony under oath. At the very least though, 24 she is willing to agree that depending on how things go with 25 these written questions, that there would be an opportunity discussion, telephonic on Friday, as well as a followup few 20 discussions that I had this morning. I would just say that 21

       Ms. Kehoe is making progress on trying to be helpful relate to the first surgery that has been mentioned.

 6
                 THE COURT: Only the first surgery or to the first 10

                 MR. FULLER: We're all sort of learning as we go.
11
                 THE COURT: And the time lag between the first

2.2

THE COURT: Okay. Ms. Zimmerman, is Nugier your client or is that a Florida lawyer involved in all of this?

MS. ZIMMERMAN: There is a Texas law firm involved in representing Mr. Nugier, and I was hoping that I would not have to address the Court at all as we kind of find ourselves a little bit in the middle of the position here.

We agree with the defendants, and we're prepared to join in the motion to a certain extent, as we think that the information is in fact necessary to work up these cases for bellwether.

I will say that given what I've heard this morning, I would reiterate our position and what I thought was our agreement about contracting treaters because it sounds like there's been a great deal of information that's been learned about Mr. Nugier's surgeries, particularly on Friday, that I'm hearing for the first time in this court.

So to the extent that there are ongoing conversations with defense counsel and with the government about the plaintiff at issue and his medical care, the plaintiff certainly reiterate their request that they be involved in those conversations because this is not mere scheduling. This is really quite substantive.

At the same time, the plaintiff find themselves aligned with the government to a certain extent as well, because, and I think that the government articulates this in the briefing, there are federal limitations with respect to this, what I think is an attempt by defendants to cross over from understanding what kind of treatment Mr. Nugier required at the VA, because the actual requests from 3M ask about experience with the Bair Hugger, efficacy, things that touch on expert issues. And I do think that there's a line that this Court can and should draw with respect to the information sought from the treaters down in Miami when we get there. Now, I think that probably there's a middle ground that we could meet if the parties, both the plaintiffs and the defendants and the government, were to work together to see if we could reach agreement on obtaining documents, obtaining depositions partially perhaps by a written question and partially by a telephone deposition, but it seems to me based on some of the information that was gained on Friday, we may need to discuss representativeness and some other issues with respect to bellwether status from Mr. Nugier as well. THE COURT: Okay. MS. ZIMMERMAN: Thank you. THE COURT: Thank you. Anything else? I'm going to go over here, but, Mr. Fuller, do you have anything?

that to me the comments of plaintiff's counsel just now underscore the reasonableness of the denial here because one of the factors involved is an appearance of favoritism in a lawsuit such as this, and where one of the parties happens to be a veteran, there's a heightened concern that the veteran may feel slighted or may be hesitant avail himself of the VA services, and so that was one of the factors that went into the decision here. THE COURT: Is there any -- one of the complicating factors that's not present, as I understand it, that both of these doctors are still employed by the VA and are accessible and within the control of the United States? MR. FULLER: That is accurate. THE COURT: Thank you. Ms. Lewis, anything else? MS. LEWIS: Just short, Your Honor. With respect to the deposition of written questions and a follow-up time, we believe the amount of time it would take to prepare answers to the questions plus prepare for the deposition would be about the same amount of time that we would want for the deposition itself. So I'm not sure it saves those conversation with Mr. Fuller, it was strictly administrative. We were trying to negotiate what we were going to do. It was Ms. Kehoe who mentioned that he was in a trailer, so nothing beyond that was unfold, so there was no substantive discussion about Mr. Nugier's treatment during that conversation.

THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

MR. FULLER: I'm sorry, is it acceptable for me to add one more point, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. FULLER: Just to be clear, I have raised this exact question with the agency counsel and Ms. Kehoe, who knows how things work within the VA. It is very clear that written questions with followup in her experience will be much more efficient from the doctor's perspective.

THE COURT: Let me ask you this about one of the government's positions, as I understand it, with respect to the production of documents at least is that there should be a Freedom of Information Act request. Is it the government's position that when that comes in it would sort of get to the end of the line of all of the other Freedom of Information Act requests that the VA might be responding to and go through the ordinary course? Or is there -- I guess I'm trying to figure out what's the distinction between responding to a request for documents as opposed to a

Freedom of Information Act request as a practical matter? MR. FULLER: As a practical matter, the FOIA request gets processed by a certain, you know, a specific office that is for that purpose, and they're very familiar with the exceptions and what can and can't go out and what needs to be redacted under the FOIA law. And I haven't dug in and had much of a detailed conversation with Ms. Kehoe about that avenue. But in my experience with other situations, other agencies, at least, it's sometimes possible to reach an agreement that a FOIA request can be expedited. So that's just something I'll put out there not as an offer, but just as information. THE COURT: All right. Anything else from Ms. Zimmerman? anybody? MS. ZIMMERMAN: No, Your Honor. MS. LEWIS: No, Your Honor. THE COURT: All right. Well, here's what I'm going to do. First, I'm going to take the matter under advisement. And today is September 18th. I plan to enter an order no later than Friday, September 22nd. And I would urge all three lawyers who are in the courtroom, as well, Ms. Zimmerman, if you need to engage the Texas firm who is Mr. Nugier's counsel, to chat amongst yourselves and see if you cannot reach an agreement. And I would urge you all to try to reach an agreement, because as I read the law, it strikes me that the government's position is largely in some 2

       ways supported by the law, whether the law is just or not is 3
       a different question. So if you can reach some agreement, 4
       it would be in the interest of all concerned, I think, to 5
       reach an agreement and move forward with it.
 6
                 Notify me by e-mail to the chambers e-mail account 7
       by Friday, the 22nd, if you have reached an agreement. And 8
       if you have not, I will issue an Order. Actually, notify me 9
       by Thursday night, close of business Thursday the 21st, and 10
       if you have not reached agreement, I will enter an Order on 11
       Friday. Anything else?

                                  Thank you, Your Honor.
                 MS. LEWIS: No.
13
                 MS. AHMANN:
                              Thank you.
14
                 MR. FULLER: Thank you, Your Honor.
15
                 THE COURT: Okay. We are in recess.
